Developing a Teaching Portfolio

A teaching portfolio is a document that records your teaching related achievements, whether in the classroom, in curriculum design, in developing innovative teaching tools, or in creating unique and effective assessments. It is an important document when applying for academic positions, and is also essential to support applications for tenure and promotion. In this seminar we will discuss how you can begin to gather the evidence to develop an impressive teaching portfolio, and will also consider some examples of teaching portfolios from legal academics. It will be useful for those contemplating an academic career, new academics preparing for a tenure application, or as a refresher if you are contemplating writing a promotion application in the future. Please join us for what will do doubt be an informative discussion.

Speaker: John Willison, School of Education

John is a senior lecturer in the Discipline of Higher Education, School of Education. He coordinates the Graduate Certificate in Higher Education (GCHE).

Venue: Room 110

Date: 10.00-11.00 Tuesday 23 April 2013

Further information:

www.law.adelaide.edu.au/seminarseries