Adelaide Law School - The first year curriculum

As teachers we become very familiar with our particular courses, but often have limited familiarity with, or sense of ownership of, the law degree as a whole. In an effort to remedy this, and to facilitate progressive learning by students, integration of courses and collaboration between teachers, the 2010 Teaching the Law seminars will be used to share information about the content, philosophy and teaching approach of our core curriculum. Course coordinators will make brief presentations about their courses, including the teaching methodology, coverage of legal material and assessment. This process begins with presentations about 4 first year courses.

Please join us as our colleagues introduce us to:
- the goals, philosophy and approach of their courses;
- the substantive material covered;
- the teaching methodology employed;
- the assessment structure;
- particular skills which are taught and assessed;
- how they coordinate with other courses in the degree;
- any comparative or International elements; and
- particular problems which have been encountered in the course and how they have been dealt with.
